

The Deposition of Sarah Stephens aged & ~~about~~ Margery Pasque aged

June last past they being improved in the holding of Jemima Rea suddenly seized with strange fits, they heard the said Jemima in her fits cry out much upon Goody Nurse, Goody Cloyce & Goody Black, & said, what you cannot do it alone, & you brought this woman to help you; why did you bring her? she was never complained of. Goody-Cloyce (as these Deponents suppose) answered that the Devil would not suffer her any longer to be a witch she must be brought out: And the said Jemima complained that Goody Cloyce Pincht & Pincht her, & the said Jemima (as they understood by her discourse) was told by the said Cloyce that one Lords day when she run out of the meeting-house from the sacrament in a great rage, had her Master met her at the garison gate just before the Fore-door of the meeting house, to which Master she made a courtesy, & at that time set her hand to his book, & when she took her leave of him she made another courtesy.
And farther these Deponents say that the said Jemima spake to this purpose in six or seven fits one after another, & that the said Cloyce would have her the said Jemima do as she the said Cloyce had done, & bid these two deponents hold her hands that she might not so do; & also the said Jemima when recovered of her fits confirmed what she had spoken in her fits to these Deponents & farther saith not.
